

Applied Computer Programming
Mr. Neat

Calc3

This program is an extension of calc1 and calc2. The new feature of this program is that the calculator should remain functional until the user decides to quit. The user should be able to perform as many math problems as they like and then be able to stop. After the first calculation, ask the user if they would like to do another. If so, allow it. If not, end the program.